

Dr. Yujin Nah, MD

Expert in Regenerative Medicine and Skin Health

Dr. Yujin Nah is a renowned physician specializing in regenerative and aesthetic medicine with a focus on skin health, aging, and holistic skincare. Born and grew up in South Korea, Dr. Nah earned her medical degree from her home country, she pursued her postgraduate training and career in the United States through Boston University and Brown University affiliated hospitals. She has dedicated her time and efforts to advancing the understanding and treatment of skin conditions, with a particular emphasis on the potential of stem cells and exosomes in skin regeneration and anti-aging.

Dr. Nah's clinical expertise encompasses aging prevention, regenerative therapies, and innovative skincare approaches that integrate holistic methods such as Jin Shin Jyutsu and yoga. She is highly regarded for her research on the impact of regenerative medicine on skin health and is a strong advocate for preventive skincare. Dr. Nah believes in personalized treatment plans that address the unique needs of each patient, combining cutting-edge science with holistic practices.

Dr. Yujin Nah continues to inspire both peers and patients with her commitment to a 360-degree approach to skin health, blending medical aesthetics with a holistic perspective for optimal skin rejuvenation and wellness.